

Biography for Clarence Bozeman

As an urban educational leader, Clarence Bozeman seeks to instill a degree of committed excellence in learning for students who are in an urban setting. In addition, Clarence led school teams which changed and altered attitudes and concepts of teachers and administrators for the enhancement of student achievement. At one Cleveland High School, the focus was on restructuring the curriculum, approaches to classroom management and developing community and parent partnerships. Collaborative teamwork was the hallmark of success for several schools under Clarence's guidance. Clarence has earned a Bachelor's degree from Alabama State University in American History and Social Studies, a Master's Degree in Educational Administration Fordham University, as well as a Specialist Degree from Cleveland State University in Superintendency Leadership.

Experience:

- Pickens County Public Schools, Aliceville, AL
- Cleveland Municipal Public Schools, Cleveland, OH.
- East Cleveland Public Schools, East Cleveland, OH
- Ohio State University Young Scholars Program
- Director YMCA Technology School, Brooklyn, NY
- Friere Charter High School, Philadelphia, PA
- National Urban League Director of Education, New York, NY
- Youngstown Public Schools, Youngstown, OH
- Urban League Director of Street Academy Program, Cleveland, OH
- Ohio Entry Year Principal Program Trainer, State of Ohio Education Department, Columbus, OH
- Advanced Institutional Development Program, Department of Education, Washington, D. C.
- Ashland University History and Social Studies Teacher Consultant, Ashland, OH
- Adjunct Professor, Malcolm-King College, New York, NY
- NEH Fellow, University of California Berkley, Berkley, CA